

Transition Planning for Youth Aging Out

Version 2

Community

A Guide for First Nations

Child/Youth Workers

Assessment – Community

Backgrounder: Assessing a youth on their readiness to transition out of care and to adulthood starts with looking at various skills or abilities that he/she may have gathered knowledge on and building on that knowledge.

This will help you, the worker, to focus on skills or abilities the youth needs to move towards a successful transition. This form shows where the youth is currently at and is a guide to topics that will help the youth in their goal setting and planning.

NOTE: This form is a conversational tool.

Column 1: The Assessment column is for you to record the level of information the youth seems to have on that objective.

Column 2: The Objectives column describes the subject knowledge the youth is assessed on in the first column.

Column 3: This column has suggestions for conversations and useful activities.

Column 4: This column shows you where to find more information in this section.

Column 5: This space is for notes and the dates you worked with the youth on the objective. You may want to write down specific information or activities the youth may need to move forward.

Please use the following codes below to support your assessment of specific skills or abilities the youth has knowledge on.

- | | |
|------------------------|---|
| E = Exceptional | Youth has e xceptional knowledge on this specific skill. |
| G = Good | Youth has a g ood understanding of the skill but still needs additional assistance to build up confidence to master the knowledge. |
| A = Assistance | Youth has little to no knowledge of this skill and needs a ssistance before transitioning out of care and into adulthood. |
| D = Don't Know | To indicate that you d on't know if the youth can do this skill based on no information shared up to this point. |

1 YOUTH COMMUNITY INFORMATION AND ACTIVITIES

Just like you have relationships with family and friends that take work, it is also important to work on your relationship with your community. "Community" means the people around you. You can belong to several communities. You can be a good member of your community by participating in the community.

2 GOALS

You can have a conversation about how the youth can be part of their community.

Some people have spent their whole life in their community. Others are coming back to it after time away. Spending time with others in your community might be something that could be a goal for you. One example of being involved in your community is to volunteer.

3 GETTING TO KNOW MY COMMUNITY

You and the youth can fill in the following chart, using a separate piece of paper when you run out of space.

Often community members will have ideas of resources, services, programs and people you can access. A way to learn what is available in your community is to talk to people and fill in this chart. Some suggestions of resources and services that could be in your community are:

Programs	Services	Culture	Resources
Sports teams	Grades 1-12, ABE, trades	Drumming	NNADAP

4 FRIENDSHIP CENTERS

You can discuss the benefits of friendship centers and the kinds of activities their local one might offer.

Friendship centers are found in many urban and rural communities. They often provide access to Elders and help Aboriginal people through friendship, harmony, cultural integrity, cultural awareness, and sharing.

5 YOUTH CENTERS

If the youth has not already been to one, you could encourage them to try a youth center or a friendship center out.

Youth centers are usually places where youth can hang out outside of school hours. They usually offer a broad range of services including cultural programs, education and training programs, health programs, support, and information.

Some of the youth centers in Saskatchewan are:

- Egadz Saskatoon <https://www.egadz.ca/>
- Rainbow Youth Centre Regina <http://www.rainbowyouth.com/>

6 COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES AND EVENTS

You can have a conversation about what kinds of culture, language, events, volunteering and cultural travel that is available to them and what they might like to participate in. You can also talk about the benefits of participating in cultural activities.

Some communities have many opportunities to participate in cultural events and celebrations. You can often find information on these on:

- bulletin boards – stores, band office, health center, community center
- on the communities' website
- from other community members
- community Facebook pages
- School

6.1 SASKCULTURE SUCCESS STORIES

There are many successful cultural events that have taken place in Saskatchewan over the last few years. If you like, you can follow this link to a page that tells of a number of success stories:

6.3 CULTURAL EVENTS

You might like to participate in cultural events in or around your community. Sometimes there is the chance to perform in them such as by dancing or drumming, volunteering to help out, or watching the events.

- National Aboriginal Day Celebrations <http://www.sicc.sk.ca/>
- Powwows
- Round dances
- Feasts
- Rodeos
- Seasonal ceremonies

6.4 ACTIVITIES

Many times communities will hold different activities on a regular basis. They can be a lot of fun and often many people from the community attend them. Usually there will be information on what activities are coming up on the local radio, band office or bulletin boards.

- Bingo
- Feasts
- Potlucks
- Hockey games
- Poker rallies
- Sports days
- Fishing derbies
- Cultural camps
- Tipi building
- Parenting workshops

6.5 CHURCH

Churches often have different events going on such as fellowships, suppers, youth groups, and other gatherings. Most churches welcome everyone.

6.6 VOLUNTEERING

It can be a lot of fun to volunteer with other people to organize and put on an event. Many events and activities rely on volunteers. Volunteering can be fun, give you a good feeling, and volunteering can also look great on your resume.

- Rangers
- Fire department
- First Responders
- Cultural events can often use volunteers
- Serving food to the elderly or helping Elders

6.7 TOURISM

If you have the chance to travel in the province there are many historical places you can visit. These are some ideas of places you might like to visit:

7 SASKATCHEWAN YOUTH IN CARE AND CUSTODY NETWORK

It could be useful to discuss if the youth would like to get in touch with this network.

The SYICCN is a provincial non-profit organization that is dedicated to supporting and improving the lives of young people, aged 14 to 24, in or from government care in the province of Saskatchewan. They are a youth driven, "by youth, for youth", organization. Their purpose is to ensure that our members are able to have a voice in their lives and in the community, while encouraging youth to assume positive roles in their lives.

There are local 'networks' throughout Saskatchewan in:

- Saskatoon
- Yorkton
- Prince Albert
- Melfort
- Nipawin
- Lloydminster
- Meadow Lake

There is information about SYICCN at: <http://www.syiccn.ca/> or www.facebook.com/cyicw or toll free 1-888-528-8061.

8 FIRST NATIONS CONTACT INFORMATION

You can guide them to the tribal council or band information from the links below and discuss the available information.

If you would like to contact your band or your tribal council you can go to these links. Individual bands are listed under the tribal council they belong to, unless they are unaffiliated bands.

The FSIN represents 74 First Nations in Saskatchewan. The Federation is committed to honouring the spirit and intent of the Treaties, as well as the promotion, protection and implementation of the Treaty promises that were made more than a century ago.

9 FINDING YOUR VOICE

You could have a conversation with the youth about whether they have thought about making their voice heard and positive ways to do it.

Youth activism can be about using your story to make changes. It is about making your voice heard. The media or even arranging protests can help make your voice heard if nothing else is working.

An example of youth activism is:

Mike Scott is a First Nations motivational speaker from Sturgeon Lake who is using his story of adversity to inspire youth from across the country. Leaving behind a life of addictions, Scott began a journey of healing and started the “Sober is Sexi” motto.

Mike Scott

9.1 YOUTH-LED MEDIA

Instead of allowing media to paint pictures of youth and their communities however they want to, young people can write their stories and tell their truths to share their own stories. Youth-led media can give children and youth a voice to reach out beyond their communities.

9.2 YOUTH-LED PROTESTS

When young people think something should change and nothing seems to be changing, a protest might be an option. Youth-led protests can be the most powerful option children and youth have to bring about change. There are many protest activities, including sit-ins, picketing, #hashtags, walkouts, and more.

10 VOTING

You can chat about voting on or off reserve and what the benefits of voting are.

A person can vote in First Nations elections if they are registered with that First Nation. Off reserve, a person can vote in a municipal elections if they live in a town/city. A person can vote in a provincial or federal elections when they are 18. You can register to vote at any time during or outside of an election by calling 1-800-INFO VOTE. During an election, if you are not already on the voters list you can still vote on Election Day by showing identification and address.

Advertisements for elections will usually be on local radio stations and in newspapers. You can also ask people in your community when the elections are and where they are being held.

10.1 WHO CAN VOTE?

Your vote is how you help choose a person in politics to represent you. You can vote if you:

- are a Canadian citizen
- are at least 18 years old on election day

- have proof of identity and address (for list of approved identification documents: <http://www.elections.ca>)

11 COMMUNITY LEADERSHIP

You could have a conversation with the youth about participating in community leadership. They can assist in many ways, even running in an election.

The majority of First Nations governments have a chief and councilors who are responsible for making decisions on behalf of the First Nation and its members. There are a few ways that the chief and councilors can be elected. These are part of the community's election act and codes.

A typical election might include:

- Elections being held usually every two years
- Electoral officers manage the overall election process and all related activities
- Voters have the opportunity to nominate
- You can vote in person on-reserve or by mail-in ballot
- Votes are counted and the candidates who have been elected are announced.
- Candidates or eligible voters have time after the election to make an appeal if there was something that was noticed that could have affected the results of the election

Your band office would be the best place to get more information about your community's leadership process. People in the community may also be able to answer questions you might have about your community's leadership.

11.1 FEDERATION OF SOVEREIGN INDIGENOUS NATIONS

The Federation of Sovereign Indigenous Nations is designed to:

- Consult with First Nations when working with First Nations, Crown agencies, private agencies, businesses and organizations, people and communities and define the roles, responsibilities of all parties
- Analyze responses from the people of the First Nations and make conclusions and decisions
- To produce better communication, stronger relationships and resolution of issues between the FSIN, the First Nations, Crown agencies, private agencies, businesses and organizations, people and communities.

The FSIN has a Legislative Assembly and a Senate. Each First Nation that is part of the FSIN has one vote they can use in the Assembly. It has some governing powers which can include:

- passing of laws, ordinances, statutes, regulations and codes
- supervising the Executives
- holding at least three sessions of the Legislative Assembly each year

This link can give you more information on the FSIN and the Legislative Assembly:
